Welcome to Oxford Music Online

With over 60,000 articles written by over 6,000 music scholars, Grove Music Online (GMO) is the authoritative resource for music research with an ongoing mission to chart the diverse history and cultures of music and musicians from around the globe.

Grove Music Online is the eighth edition of Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians, and contains articles commissioned specifically for the site as well as articles from New Grove 2001, Grove Opera, and Grove Jazz. The recently published second editions of The Grove Dictionary of American Music and The Grove Dictionary of Musical Instruments are still being put online, and new articles are added to GMO with each site update.

Watch what editors, authors, and users have to Oxford Music Online is the access point for Grove Music Online and other Oxford music reference resources.

New to Grove Music Online

Grove Music Online is updated three times a year. The August 2015 update includes:

- 154 new and 128 updated GMO articles.
- 299 articles from the second edition of AmeriGrove.
- 302 articles from the second edition of the Instruments dictionary.

Mayall, John

b. 29 November 1933, Macclesfield, Cheshire, England. The career of England's premier white blues exponent and father of British blues has now spanned six decades and much of that time has been unintentionally spent acting as a musical catalyst.

Mayall formed his first band in 1955 while at college, and as the Powerhouse Four the group worked mostly locally. Soon afterwards, Mayall enlisted for National Service. He then became a commercial artist and finally moved to London to form his Blues Syndicate, the forerunner to his legendary Blues Breakers. Along with ALEXIS KORNER, CYRIL DAVIES and GRAHAM BOND, Mayall pioneered British R&B. The astonishing number of musicians who have passed through his bands reads like a who's who. Even more remarkable is the number of names who have gone on to eclipse Mayall with either their own bands or as members of highly successful groups. Pete Frame, author of Rock Family Trees, has produced a detailed Mayall specimen, which is recommended. His roster of musicians included JOHN MCVIE, Hughie Flint, Mick Fleetwood, ROGER DEAN, DAVEY GRAHAM, ERIC CLAPTON, JACK BRUCE, AYN SLEY DUNBAR, PETER GREEN, DICK HECKSTALL-SMITH, Keef Hartley, ANDY FRASER, MICK TAYLOR, HENRY LOWTHER, COCO MONTOYA, Tony Reeves, Chris Mercer, JON HISEMAN, Steve Thompson, Colin Allen, Jon Mark, JOHNNY ALMOND, HARVEY MANDEL, Larry Taylor, and Don 'Sugarcane' Harris.

that was indebted to jazz. Without drums, the ensemble centered around the fingerstyle acoustic guitar playing of Jon Mark, the virtuosic tenor saxophone and flute playing of Johnny Almond and Mayall's keyboards, as on the live album The Turning Point (Pol., 1969; released 1970), which also included the harmonica tour de force 'Room to Move'. Mayall changed direction to explore a more intense fusion of styles on the album Jazz-Blues Fusion (Pol., 1971), but eventually returned to his earlier electric blues style. Throughout the 1960s and early 70s his albums included increasingly more of his original pieces, many of them modelled on traditional blues, and fewer covers.

On 30th May 1866, the new opera The Bartered Bride followed, without dances in its first version. It was revised in 1869, when, among other additions, the Polka of Act II was included. Further revision followed, with the final version staged at the Provisional Theatre in September, 1870.

The Bartered Bride of the title, Marenka, is to marry the son of Tobias Micha, who turns out to be the simpleton Vasek. She already has a handsome lover, Jenik, who barbers her away with the marriage-broker, agreeing, for a consideration, that Marenka should marry only a son of Micha. All complications are finally resolved when it turns out that Jenik, always aware of his own true identity, is Micha's long lost son. Vasek, meanwhile, has found his own delight in the circus dancer Esmeralda, and a role for himself playing the part of a performing bear in the circus. The opera opens with a sparkling Overture. The Polka and the Furiant, in the final version of the opera, provide dances for the villagers, while the so-called Dance of the Comedians introduces the traveling circus of Act III.

The Windows taskbar at the bottom shows the Start button, several open applications (including "Databáze" and "Work Infor..."), and the system tray with the time "8:59 pátek".
