Abstract
Background
Breast cancer is the most common cancer among women in both the developed and the developing world. The incidence of breast cancer in Karachi, Pakistan is 69.1 per 100,000 with breast cancer presentation in stages III and IV being common ($\geq 50\%$). The most pragmatic solution to early detection lies in breast cancer education of women. Nurses constitute a special group having characteristics most suited for disseminating breast cancer information to the women. We assessed the level of knowledge of breast cancer risk factors among registered female nurses in teaching hospitals of Karachi. We also identified whether selected factors among nurses were associated with their knowledge of breast cancer risk factors, so that relevant measures to improve knowledge of nurses could be implemented.
Methods
A cross-sectional survey was conducted in seven teaching hospitals of Karachi using stratified random sampling with proportional allocation. A total of 609 registered female nurses were interviewed using a structured questionnaire adapted from the Stager's Comprehensive Breast Cancer Knowledge Test. Knowledge of breast cancer risk factors was categorized into good, fair and poor categories. Ordinal regression was used

The screenshot shows the DOAJ (Directory of Open Access Journals) website. The search results are for the query "cancer nursing". A modal dialog box is displayed in the center, asking "Currently showing 10. How many would you like instead?". The dialog has a text input field and two buttons: "OK" and "Zrušit" (Cancel). A red arrow points from the "Full Text language" filter on the left sidebar to the dialog box. The sidebar shows various filters including "Journals vs Articles", "Subject", "Journal license", "Publisher", and "Full Text language". The "Full Text language" filter is currently set to "English" and shows a count of 10. The search results list several articles, including "Breast cancer study", "Increased Interleukin-6 Activity Associated with Painful Chemotherapy-Induced Peripheral Neuropathy in Women after Breast Cancer Treatment", "The experience of suffering in main care takers of patients with cancer-pain and non-cancer pain", and "Calidad de vida de mujeres en situación de enfermedad crónica de cáncer de cérvix".
