Portál DART-Europe zpřístupňující elektronické disertace z vybraných evropských výzkumných knihoven (prostřednictvím jednotného webového rozhraní). Systém je prozatím v experimentální fázi. Portál je zabezpečován Evropskou asociací výzkumných knihoven (LIBER, Ligue des Bibliothèques Européennes de Recherche), resp. její Divizí pro zpřístupňování informací, která je evropským partnerem mezinárodního systému NDLTD. Na systému se v roce 2010 podílí řada výzkumných knihoven nebo jejich konsorcií z 19 evropských zemí. Celý systém je spravován Knihovnou Londýnské globální univerzity. Z hlavní stránky portálu lze realizovat jednoduché vyhledávání. K dispozici je také vyhledávání pokročilé a také prohlížení metadatových záznamů pomocí 5 rejstříků. Sběr dat je založen na principech OAI-PMH (sběr metadat z dílčích archivů). Spolupráce institucí je realizována na základě Dohody o partnerství (2008).

An analysis of the mission statements of K-12 Christian schools: Their components and the value they hold for the organizational leader

by Rough, David, Ed.D., Indiana Wesleyan University, 2008, 252; AAT 3344674

Other Available Formats:
Full Text - PDF (1.29 MB)

Abstract (Summary)

A mission statement is an organizational document declaring the purpose of an institution and its reason for existence. The mission statement can help an organizational leader to make decisions, to motivate him/herself and others, to build toward organizational unity, to integrate a philosophical purpose with practical goals, and to enhance communication across the organization. A well crafted mission statement can be a vital tool for the organizational leader as he/she establishes and maintains an organizational culture that reflects the purpose of the institution. The benefits of a well-worded and consistently implemented mission statement range from increased employee motivation and positive cultural alignment to enhanced job performance and effective fund raising. This research explores the important components that make up this powerful document and how the CEO puts this document into practice. An analysis of the elements comprising these organizational documents of purpose is conducted and the delineation is made of both the common themes and the extent of diversity among the mission statements of ACSI accredited K-12 Christian schools. The organizational leader is also a focus of this investigation. This study explores the perspective and behavior of the school's CEO in relationship to the organization's mission statement. Three aspects of the CEO's leadership are examined in this dissertation. First, the level of importance that the CEO places on the mission statement is evaluated. Second, this research explores how the CEO uses the school's mission statement in his/her ministry of leadership. A third aspect of this research involves an investigation into the CEO's perspective of the impact that the mission statement has on the faculty of the school

Title	A longitudinal study of anxiety, self-esteem and personality of bullying groups
Author	Connolly, Irene
Subject(s)	Education, Ph.D.; Ph.D. Trinity College Dublin
Abstract	THESIS 7856.1THESIS 7856.2Bullying can be defined as "repeated aggression, verbal, psychological or physical conducted by an individual or group against others" (Department of Education, 1993. p.6). Once regarded as a childhood issue, the prolonged suffering of victims into adulthood, the quality of their relationships and their ability to operate effectively in the workplace is an area of concern. These children mature into adults with self-esteem issues, anxiety about life in general and feelings of inadequacy. Being the victim of bullying can persist in adulthood, as the coping skills necessary to deal with the problem have not been suitably developed. For the victims it may lead to a life of depression and low self-esteem causing problems in adult relations and accomplishments. The victims may never develop appropriate self-confidence, preventing them from engaging in adult relationships and pursuing careers. It may in extreme cases even lead to them committing suicide. The bully themselves appear to suffer in a similar manner. The skills for living a well-adjusted life are underdeveloped or simply do not exist at all. They too appear to suffer from relationship problems, a pattern of aggressive behaviour that makes familial relationships difficult; low self-esteem and high anxiety also appear to be characteristic of the adult bullies.
